

Corporate Overview

RidgeRun™, Inc. is exclusively focused on bringing the reliability and flexibility of Linux® to embedded Internet appliances based on Texas Instruments' DSPs (digital signal processors). RidgeRun's DSPLinux™ operating system leverages the power of Texas Instruments' dual-core DSP architectures to deliver the performance-leading platform for wireless, broadband and multimedia appliances using DSPs. DSPLinux is optimized for high performance, power efficient OEM devices including mobile phones, digital cameras, audio and video players, automotive systems, set-top boxes, home networking gateways, and PDAs. RidgeRun, Inc. recently secured $5 million in its first major funding round from Texas Instruments (NYSE: TXN), a global semiconductor technology company, and leading venture capitalists. In addition to TI, the round includes venture investments from TechSpace Xchange LLC, an affiliate of Safeguard Scientifics, Inc.; PAC West Technology Fund I, L.P.; and the Matthew G. Norton Company.

Our products and services will provide our customers with significant time to market advantage and enable them to fully utilize DSP performance and system flexibility. By leveraging the DSPLinux platform, RidgeRun customers begin their development with an optimized infrastructure, tool set, support services and applications that are geared for the power of DSPs. Our technology focus is designed to help companies rapidly expand into new markets, produce customer loyalty and increase global competitiveness.

The RidgeRun team has extensive experience in developing world-class embedded systems, fault-tolerant software and high performance Linux solutions.
